

Facing Redundancy? Seeking a New Career?

Do you need help getting a new job? Do you even know how to get a new job when there are no jobs out there? Perhaps you would like to make a career change but don't know what options you have. Or you might be ready for greater things but uncertainty or lack of confidence is holding you back.

The job market today is tougher than it has been for years. You dare not leave your fate to chance. Taking active control of your career is the best investment you will ever make. Carecall provide training for individuals affected by redundancy or seeking an alternative career. The Workshops are designed to radically shorten the jobs search process for people. Facilitated by our highly experienced career coaches who are all qualified experts in the field of training and recruitment, our Workshops will help you to understand your transferable skills, identify alternative career options including self employment, make successful applications and enhance your interviewing skills.

THE WORKSHOPS

Creating Options and Opportunities

Participants are helped to understand their transferable skills and current market value, identify alternative career options including self employment and retraining and learn about ways of finding a new job that best suits them.

Making Successful Applications

This Workshop takes participants through the process of identifying their achievements in order to build an effective and targeted CV. In addition guidance will be given on how to create an effective cover letter for both speculative and advertised applications and how to complete an application form.

Interviewing Skills

This Workshop takes participants through the process of preparing for the different interview types including competency based interviews and assessment centres. We provide comprehensive advice on preparing for interview, cover the most asked questions, devise questions to ask at interview and complete a post interview review.

Take back control of your career by signing up for one of the Workshops now!

Workshops are being held in locations across Northern Ireland. The locations vary according to demand for places. For further information or to reserve a place on one of the Workshops please telephone Kim Mawhinney on 028 9024 5821 or e-mail k.mawhinney@carecallsolutions.com
